Driving down a country road the driver noticed a chicken running ahead of his car. His speedometer clocked fifty miles an hour. He increased speed to sixty, and then seventy miles an hour. But the chicken sped up too. Outrunning the car, it turned into a small farm and disappeared. Astonished by the performance of the chicken the driver pulled into the farm and knocked on the farmhouse door. The driver said, "I don't want to be bold, but do you know that you have a chicken that can run seventy miles per hour?" The farmer said, "Oh I have a lot of chickens who can do that. On this farm we breed three-legged chickens and they are very fast." "Three-legged chickens? I never heard of that! Why would you want them three-legged?" The farmer explained, "You see, my wife, my son and I like drumsticks and we always fight over who is going to get the drumsticks. But, with a three-legged chicken each one of us has one drumstick each and peace prevails in the family." The driver said, "That's amazing! I never heard of a three-legged chicken. What do they taste like?" The farmer shrugged his shoulders, "I have no idea. We haven't been able to catch one yet."

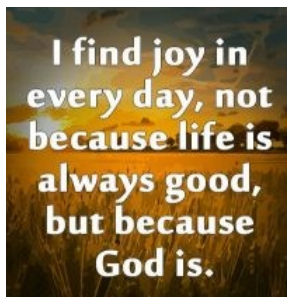

Sometimes more is not better. Just examine our Canadian culture. We are living in a country that has a very high standard of living. Longevity of life, discoveries in medicine, and the amount and variety of food are all increasing. But the number of sad people and people dealing with clinical depression is also increasing. People who are killing themselves with drugs because they think that drugs would bring them happiness.

Now this shows that the things we have do not guarantee happiness. For all our possessions, there are still many who live with emptiness, experiencing spiritual hollowness that robs us of joy. You can buy fun. But you can't buy happiness.

What we have does not make us happy. Who we belong to does. If we can love ourselves and give and receive love from others, that is the secret of happiness. If we can live in those relationships, we can be happy despite what we have or do not have. That is why Jesus' words are so important in today's Gospel. Jesus describes our most important relationship, our relationship to God. Jesus says that God so loved the world that He gave His only Son that we might have life. We believe in a God who loves us and wants to give us life. Therefore, if we can open ourselves to that love, we can in the same action open ourselves to the love of others. Such love and such relationships are the only way of finding happiness.

So, if we can take God's love in and share it with others, that will make us happy. But do not be deceived. Our odds of being happy through the things we buy or possess are very small. They are about as good as the odds of catching a three-legged chicken.

STEWARDSHIP REFLECTION . . .

Fourth Sunday in Lent

"For God so loved the world that He gave His only Son..."

John 3:16

Of all the wonderful gifts that God has given to us, the gift of His own Son is truly the greatest.

How can we ever thank God for a gift like that? God does not ask us to sacrifice our own precious firstborn, but He does ask that we are grateful and generous with our God-given gifts. That we nurture and develop them and return with increase.
