Catholic Cemeteries are a link between the living & the departed.

What would you change if you could live your life all over again?
 Bartimaeus' cry in today's Gospel is "Lord, I want to see." If that were you, what would you want to see?

Fr. William Bausch's essay on the Bartimaeus story suggests that there are three things we would want to see: (1) relationships, (2) the overlooked and (3) the hints of God's grace in our lives.

First, we would want to see that relationships are the most important part of life. This would lead us to ask why we allowed the madness of individualism and consumerism get ahead of our relationships? Why we allowed careers, and desire to accumulate things push the people in our lives to the side? In our most sober moment we know that nothing is more important than our relationships. Then why don't we see it?

Second, we would want to see the overlooked. You know who the overlooked are: the poor, the needy, the troubled, and the non-persons, deemed no value by society.

The third and final thing we would want to see, is the presence of God in our lives; the hints of God's presence which are around us. God is always present in our lives, living in every moment and every breath. The beauty of God pulses through our daily routine.

Yet how infrequently do we see that presence, and take comfort and strength from it. How much more rewarding our life would be, if we could have increased our sensitivity to the ways in which God is present in our lives and pay attention to the details of God's beauty in our daily surroundings and routine.

Bartimaeus' cry in today's Gospel, "Lord, I want to see" is the cry of every disciple, and the cry of every person who wishes to become fully human. As a human person, we want to see the primacy of relationships in our lives. We want to see the people we overlooked and we want to see the hints of God's presence in our daily routine.

If you scream Bartimaeus' cry yourself, do not be surprised if Christ will hear you. Do not be surprised if Jesus grants your prayer. For that is the Good News. The promise of the Gospel is that the second time around can begin today.

STEWARDSHIP REFLECTION

“And Jesus said to him, ‘Go your way; your faith has made you well.’ And immediately he received his sight and followed Him on the way.”

Mark 10:52

Faith is believing in something even though you may not be able to see it. Many people think that miracles don’t happen anymore. But, if you focus on the positive, not the negative, focus on your blessings instead of your hardships, miracles will seem common and you will see God’s active presence in your daily life.
